IT is a well-recognised fact that Governnot execute works so cheaply or so quickly nature of things that this should be so. The machinery of Government moves with great deal of friction, and the stimulus of direct personal interest in economy is wanting. In looking down the long lists of extraordinary public works now before the Finance Committee, one is astonished to observe not only the large number of works the P. W. D. is endeavouring to carry out at one time, but also the huge French proverb.

cost of some of them. The Colony is more or less committed to all the undertakings, most of which have already been begun, The Committee therefore can hardly expunge any from the list, even were it desirable to do so, but it. can and ought to enquire narrowly into the coat: We are glad to see an effort is being made in this direction, which, it is to be hoped, will result in considerable. economy being effected. $90,000 is a big silver. America's monthly purchases to be sum to pay for a slaughter-house and sheep and pig depots; while $25,000 seems far too much for the small experiment proposed in the direction of establishing laundries. And how $73,000 should be required for staff and coolie quarters at the Civil Hospital is certainly a puzzle to outsiders. The Finance Committee has called for plans and reports with regard to the slaughter-house and other items, and we trust it will not allow any of them to pass without satisfying itself that due economy is being observed. The reasons that were urged for hurrying on the ordinary Estimates have no application to the Extraordinary Estimates.

There is no necessity therefore, for the unofficial members precipitately sanctioning any of the works that are on the large programme submitted by the Government. It has been suggested by our morning contemporary that all votes for public works should be submitted first to the projects ought to be thoroughly discussed before being submitted to the Finance Committee. He sees dangers ahead, and he performs his duty in indicating them as clearly as possible. As we have pointed out all along, Hongkong has immense possibilities, but these possibilities depend on economical government. THE following remarks by the Singapore Erec Press with regard to the desirability of fruit apply with some qualification to the fruit-growing districts in the neighbourhood of Hongkong : - A writer in the Journal of the Society of Arts discusses the question of fruit growing in India. He contends that the authorities have no right to employ flowers. Fruit nurseries should be established in charge of a European conversant introduced and their acclimatisation studied. Native fruits should be carefully cultithemselves in a few years, and would give an impotus to the fruit trade. Considering Si gapore the small quantity and poor quality are surprising. We have an unfailing market he the town itself and in the shipping always calling, and there is money in our native truits if properly cultivated from chosen stocks, on the island itself. A present all the decent fruit we get is there are, are left to native care, or wantcareful cultivation would supply us with an abundance of the food which is acknowledged to be the most suitable of all for a tropical climate.

THE Singapore Free Press gives the followof the cricketing visitors at Singapore :--There is one point in connection with the visit of our Intercolonial friends '-(what sort of friends intercolonial friends are we don't know) - at Christmas that should not be lost sight of either by the Committee or by those who are entertaining them. Amusement is not always enjoyment whon given at the expense of comfort, and the one thing calculated to spoil fun is a mental condition similar to the physical one of an athlete who has done too much work and has become "atale." We are planning to give our visitors as good a time as we know how to, but the result will not be as successful as we should wish unless we allow them judicious periods of repose. No man can play cricket all day, dine out, go to a dance, reach bed at four next morning, and be on the field again at eleven fit for more cricket. Therefore deal gently with tired nature, and and if a fellow feels inclined for a long chair don't tempt him to get up to see the sun rise from Fort / Canning. Public entertainments are sometimes dreary functions -- of course they won't be so here and there is enjoyment to be had from a quiet evening smoke and perchance after-dinner doze as a sequel to a tiring day's work in the field. No doubt only a proportion varying from one-fourth to one half of our visitors will ever be Miss Souza. The Portuguese Amateur criticised the vessel. Birmingham, November 9. - English dociety is much interested at the information cabled from America to the effect that the American Duchess has had several judgments rendered against her in New York on behalf of creditors in Birmingham. That the Duchess of Marlborough should borrow money from this Pittsburg of England seems queer, but investigation shows ample-reason for it. It is no secret that the Duchess tried in every possible way to raise money, and it is well known here that the American trustees of the Hammersley estate have done their best to frustrate her benevolent intentions. GLAUSTONE ON WEALTH. London, November 9. - What good mie may a rich man make of his riches? Despite the indelicacy of such suggestions; answers to this question most generally come from those rich only in suggestions, which lends interest and importance to the ideals and plans contained in Audrew Carnegie's 'Gospel of Wealth,' because, as Mr Gladstone justly says in his review of the book for the current number of the Nineteenth Century, advance sheets, of which have just been taken from the press, his purse, which is a heavy one, seems to discharge its contents as freely as they have been received.

Mr Gladatone seems to agree with Mr Carnegie that the accumulation of wealth is not in itself a bad thing. It is the business of the world. It is the growth of what he calls 'responsible wealth' which he considers portentous. His statement of Mr Carnegie's position is as follows: Luxury is, as he evidently conceives, the mether of industry, and industry is to human society what movement is to the air and sea. Therefore he boldly upholds his position as one of the industrial giants, and he considers enterprise on a vast scale and the erection of colosial fortunes to be a normal process and essential to the conditions of modern society.
